Letter from Gen. Maney in Reference to an Assumed Trade Between Col. McGhoe and Himself.

From the Memphis Appeal. NASHVILLE, Oct. 30, 1871.—Editors Appeal.—My attention having just been called to several articles in your issue of the 28th inst., indicating that at some time there had been a "trade" between Hon. C. M. McGhee and myself in reference to State bonds issued to the railroad company of which I am president, I deam it proper to correct misapprehensions by the assurance that I have never, either as such president or individually, made any trade in bonds with Mr. McGhee. Neither have I officially or personally ever had a financial transaction of any character whatever with him, or with any party known to me to be associated with him.

With regard to bonds issued to this road, cerning Utah matters. had it been my conviction that any such were "fraudulently" or "wrongfully" issued to me, they would at the time have been restored to the State. But they were delivered by order of the Governor, as I understood, under counsel of the Attorney General of the State, and I am not aware that any like legal zaviser for the State has ever since "declated" they were "fraudulently or wrongfull's paid out." It is true these bonds were exchanged, particulars of which trans-action are fully stated in my last annual re Port, and that this exchange was induced by certain threatened action of the last Legislature. But as Legislatures are by our constitution incapable of judicial powers, the legality of their issue could not be properly determined by such a body, That, after the exchange mentioned, Mr. McGhee, or parties interested with him, may have come in possession of even a large portion of the bonds originally issued to this read, is highly probable, but those acquainted with the business course of such matters, will easily understand this could occur without the least understanding between us, and without even a wish or intention of that result on the part of either While I have, gentlemen, no cause to complain of the least personal discourtesy at your hands, am sure you will appreciate hat prominence in affairs not our own, is not the most pleasant of things, but beyond mere personal consideration. I have felt it proper, in behalf of facts, to make this stateconvinced that knowledge of truth in the premises will be acceptable to your selves as to any other party interested. Very respectfully yours,

GEORGE MANEY.

TAXATION. From the Paris Intelligences While some papers in the State are becoming clamorous for a rate of taxation which they themselves fix-in all probability too low to meet the demands of the State, on the most economical basis-we think the Legislature will put the rate at the very lowest possible figures, consistent with the honor and credit of the State. We should not ask for a rate so low as not to meet the necessities of the case, and thereby increase the burden in the future, to that extent that might result in utter bankruptcy on the one hand, or on the other deliberately in augurate a policy, which, to escape the first inevitably drive the people to the deplorable expedient of raising the cry for repudiation. When the Legislature shall have made the most critical and careful calculation, Including the necessary appropriations to be made during the present session, and current expenses, together with all that is now known, through the reports of the different departments already rendered, then let them fix the rate the lowest that will meet the case; and with that the people should be satisfied, whether it be 25, 35, or 45 cents on the $100. But to demand now a specific rate, say 25 cents on the $100, and thereby suffer the State indebtedness to increase by a frightful accumulation of interest and unprovided for claims, so as to compel the next Legislature to more than double the rate to meet the increased debt, would be a piece of unprecedented folly, both in the people and their Representatives. Yet we say the people have a right to demand of the Legislature the most rigid economy, and the lowest possible rate of taxation compatfble with the honor and obligations of the

Military Rule to Be Looked Into By

Special to the Cincinnati Commercial. CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—The report that Gov. Palmer had ordered proceedings to be instituted against Gen. Sheridan and Col. F. Sherman, for unlawfully placing this city under military rule during the excitement following the great fire, becoming thereby accessory to the killing of Col. Grosvenor, has been the subject of much comment. The city officials profess to know nothing about the matter, and it is not probable that any steps have yet actually been taken looking to the indictment of the above named officers. There seems no doubt, however, that the Governor is really in earnest, and the matter will be pushed to a most thorough investigation. Gen. Sheridan says he don't know or care anything about it, while Col. Sherman justifies his action and courts the fullest investigation before a Court or Record.

JACKSON, Nov. 1, 1871 .- The weather this morning was as disagreable as a win-ter's day. The wind blew chilly from the north, and the clouds hung low and looked blue. Overcoats, shawls and fires were in demand, and there was every indication that the fair would be a failure. But the people of Madison, invincible and not to be disappointed in their annual festival, came out the thousands, and by 12 o'clock the inphitheatre was chock full of life and beauty. Not only was the amphithea-tre filled, but groups of boys and young men lanxious to improve their fortunes and fill their purses, were gathered about the thriving tables where, for the pitiful sum of twenty-five ents, ten dollars might be made. The side shows were also crowded, and the man who could swallow knives, eat tobacco, or pierce his arm with ta butcher knife, occupied a

WORKS OF ART. Floral Hall also was crowded, and fair ladies, escorted by gallant gentlemen, swarmed about the works of art and industry, making altogether a picture of life so warming, so fascinating and so cheering, that your reporter almost forgot that there was no wine, brandy or Robertson county on exhibition. Among the entries in this department since yesterday, is a collection of oil paintings by Mrs. James Bright, among which the Arkansas Traveller justly claims the greatest attention, from visitors, Christ entering Jerusalem, The Cavalcade, Returning Home at Eventide and a Fruit Scene are also much admired and are pieces of considerable merit, indicating a high order of talent by the artist. The coloring is excellent, light and shade and perspective are perfect. Mrs. Dr. Nelson, of Bolivar, the daughter of that excellent gentleman Dr. Wilkinson of Jackson, has on exhibtion specimens in portrait painting, showing the successive steps taken by a student in learning that art. Beginning by painting blocks, then arms and faces and ending by painting from life the human form. The ement is interesting and the execu tion of the pieces excellent. This same estimable lady had specimens of work in portchemania beautiful beyond description In water coloring, embroidery, etc., she equally excels, and in looking at specimens of her handicraft we did not know whether more to admire the work or condemn the public opinion that gives so little encouragement to works of genius. Mrs. Nelson still paints and with proper encouragemen would become a shining light among the artists of the land. Miss Lula Wert, 14 years of age, also shows taste and talent in a fine drawing of a little girl crossing a stream with her skirts upraised and calling to her brother "Wait Her pencil drawing of flowers is also very night at Provo, subject, "The Pacific coast in the floral department Mrs. E. Her method is to take moulds of the fruits and then fill the moulds with wax. She selects the finest specimens of fruit. The peach, for instance, from which she took her model, bore off the prize at the St. Louis Fair. A picture done n chenille by this lady, is surpassingly beautiful. Her leather work, is also, showed great skill, patience and taste, making things of broidery executed by this lady was also sudes she had on exhibition, we unhesitatingy say that her genius is as ver atile and her taste as correct as can be found anywhere. A MULE RACE. The most exciting contest was a mule race n which there were five entries. The whole amphitheatre roared and stamped as they came around. The contest was close between William Lancaster and Ben Malone, the first beating by half a length.

A HOP.
At night the firemen gave a hop in Tomline Hall, and right merrily did the young men and women go through the mazes of the dance to a full volume of music. The blaze of light and jewels, the life, the gayety and the wave-like undulation of heads, the revolving waltz and interweaving of figures, all conspired to make the evening one of peculiar and passionate pleasure to the lover of the dance. We were especially pleased with the dignified movements of Major L., of Montgomery, who having abandoned the dance some twenty years ago, was induced to resume it by the attractions he met with in Jackson, the city of magnificent dances as well as of magnificent distances. black of the city of Oakland, California, The firemen left nothing undone to make hung out a sign one morning announcing
